BATON TWIRLING FINALIST

Darlene Clum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Clum, was one of two finalists in the baton twirling contest at the Circleville Pumpkin Show last Saturday. Thirty-six band majorettes competed in the afternoon contest, held outdoors in rainy, cold weather. The finals were held at 9:30 p.m.

Each girl chose her own routine, twirled to the music of the Adelphi Community Band. Keen competition and precision twirls featured the contest. Darlene is a junior and this was the second contest she had entered.

BAND, CHORUS PARENTS

Religious Play Presented By College Group

BALTIMORE — For the closing service of the revival at Beulah EUB Church Sunday evening a play, "The Sign of Jonah," was presented by the Otterbein College Chancel Theater.

The production was directed by Prof. Fred J. Thayer. Sherry Perlick was stage manager. Mrs. Edward Taggart, Baltimore, provided organ music.

Interpreting signs in this wicked age were these students portraying the roles: Jonah—James Million; Judge — William Hunter; Woman — Barbara Miller; Gabriel — Nick Walker; Michael — Robert Abdalla; Raphael — Jim Granger; Average Man and Woman — Keith Kaufman, Linda McNeil; Queen—Aldine Rose; Merchant — David Woodyard.

This is the second season for the Chancel Theater. Last year the group travelled 3,600 miles and gave 23 performances. Purpose of this program is to show the public the usefulness of drama in the church and to train Otterbein students in religious drama.
