Chillicothe Makes a Hit On The Air At W.E.A.O

MERITS OF THE CITY POINTED TO WORLD

High Talent in Music Displayed By Odd Fellows Band, Art Howson, Pat Highland.

C.of C. Makes 10 Strike

IN SECURING PERMISSION OF O. S. U. AUTHORITIES TO TELL THE TALE OF THE PRESENT CHILLICOTHE, WHAT SHE IS, WHAT SHE HAS AND WHAT SHE WANTS —MANY TELEGRAMS AND PHONE CALLS OF CONGRATULATION SENT—BILL COWDREY MAKES HIT AS ACCOMPANIST OF VOCALISTS.

Chillicothe made a decided step in advance, last night, when, through the courtesy extended to the local Chamber of Commerce, it was able to broadcast its merits and its high musical talent to the whole world through means of the radio. Manager of the Chamber of Commerce Louis C. Leeger, recognizing the value of such an offer to the city, arranged to seize and built up a program which included the Odd Fellows' band, Vocal Soloists Arthur Howson and John "Pat" Highland, with Bill Cowdrey as accompanist, and E. S. Wenis, who was chosen to tell the story of the Present Chillicothe.

The party made the trip from here to Columbus in motor cars, the encouraging support of Harry Levy, Ben Aarons, Robert E. Myers, John Wisser, Norbert Atwell, Richard Schachne, Louis Bierly and Joseph Bork, of Sulzbacher & Bork, while cars offered by the Wilshire Garage and John Highland, Jr., were found to be superfluous and were not taken.

The broadcasting station at Columbus, located in the power station of the O. S. U., was reached twenty minutes in advance of the time set by the Chillicothe party, and owing to the fact that one motor party had been taken to the Neil House by mistake, a delay was caused until that portion of the band, which had in it the leader, Will Huff, could be brought out to the university.

The band opened the program with a selection and was followed by Arthur Howson, who was introduced as the winner of the Elks' toddled trophy, and Bill Cowdrey was introduced as Chillicothe's $10,000 beauty. Mr. Howson sang "Sylvia," and his prize winning song, "The Song of Thanksgiving," by Allitsen, and later on, "Mandelay."

"Pat" Highland, introduced as Chillicothe's "Ton of Melody," sang, with the band accompaniment, "The Tamiami Trail," and, with Mr. Cowdrey accompanying, "Baby Face" and "Looking at the World."

Then came the story of Chillicothe, and this was followed by more band numbers, the radio authorities giving an hour and a half to Chillicothe. Telephone calls and telegrams praising the program were received from Providence, R. I.; Tulsa, Okla.; from K. M. Andersen, of Mt. Pulaski, Ills.; from Miss May Kothera, of Athens; George Bayne, at Bellefville, Ohio; C. W. Gesnlich, of Columbus; Lee Limle, at Massillon, and from the following in Chillicothe: Sam Segal, "Four Pop," who is supposed to be "Fussy" Enderlin, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McFerrin, from Dr. P. B. Ferris, Fred H. Schlegel, A. C. Spenagel, The Knights of Columbus, Lucian Jenness and Abe and Omar Bergman, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ware, Fred S. Donaldson, Mr. and Mrs. Russell McVicker and Norman Downing.

At the request of the Chamber of Commerce and of many citizens, the "Story of Chillicothe" is published herewith:

Nesting at the foot of a western range of hills and occupying the flat along the Scioto river, with a portion ranging in a straggling manner up over one of these heights, lies the city of Chillicothe, midway between Columbus and the Ohio river.

The seat of the county of Ross, the third largest county in the state and occupying in the earlier history of that section of the country lying west of the Alleghenies and north of the Ohio river extending to the Mississippi a place as its capital when that section was known and designated as the Northwest Territory, and then in turn being the capital of Ohio for a dozen or more years of its infancy as a state, the city of Chillicothe is the repository of much historical legend and attaches itself not only to the interest of Ohio, but of the five large and prosperous states which were carved out of that domain, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and a part of Minnesota.

Chillicothe, early in its history, was marked as a trading

SECY. DAVIS COMING HERE

Local Moose to Stage Function For Director General, Oct. 28.

On the 27th of October occurs the 63rd birthday of Director General Hon. James J. Davis, U. S. secretary of labor, who is the head of the Loyal Order of Moose. On Thursday, October 28th, the local lodge will mark the event with an initiation, with a candidate for each year of Mr. Davis' age. For he has promised to be here at that time.

Local Moose are working diligently to make the ocasion one worthy of such an august visitor.

GOING DOWN!

The total registration on Thursday, the second registration day, was 37, Secretary C. C. Metzger of the board of election reported today.

FALL BACK ON THE FAITHFUL FEW WOMEN

Failure of Fund For Welfare Association Sees Them Come to Fore.

They Will Direct Drive

AND HOPE TO SEE ASSOCIATION PUT INTO AN ACTIVE AND HEALTHY FINANCIAL CONDITION—DATE TO BE ANNOUNCED LATER AND A GET-TOGETHER DINNER WILL SEE THE DETAILS PLACED BEFORE THE SUB-COMMITTEES.

The "faithful few" women directors of the Ross County Welfare Association are now to the fore again.

The men having fallen down completely in starting the long talked of drive for sorely needed funds, the women have now been commandeered, as it were, into service to pull the almost stranded organization ship of the financial rocks on which the billows of adversity ar pounding it.

The first step was taken, Thursday afternoon, when the following executive committee for this fall's drive was appointed by President E. L. Bergman:

Mrs. Walter J. Sears, chairman; Mrs. F. A. Sosman, Mrs. Loy Hoyt, Mrs. A. Mortimer Resnick, Miss Helen Stone and one lone more man member, namely Dr. W. F. Sulzbacher.

One other male member, however, will probably be named later, Rev. Thomas Donaldson, pastor of St. Paul's church, having been compelled, he said, to decline his appointment to keep Dr. Sulzbacher company on the committee, owing to pressing church re-organizatn duties.

The women ar the executive committee were assured by President Bergman, that their duties would be "purely executive" and not in the line of active solicitation for funds. But the outlook at the time of the meeting was that there wouldn't be much of any limit to their work.

They will first decide on the date of the drive, which, it is felt, should be inaugurated at the earliest date possible. Then there will be a get-together dinner, at which as many workers as possible will be collected, and papers will be read by Miss Fannie Segal, of the Social Service Department, and by Miss Birdie Schmidt, nurse, explaining in detail to the future canvassers, the character and scope of the association's work, so that the canvassers can pass this information on to those from whom they solicit contributions. Later details will, it is expected, be worked out as fast as possible.

It developed at yesterday's meeting that the Welfare Association had been asked by the Red Cross chapter here, to put the Welfare drive off until after that of the Red. Cross in November, but it was felt by the Welfare di-
