Fal Fatal to Beauty, Says Edman
If You Can't Be Slim, Look Slim

Edna Walker Edman

CHICAGO—Edna Walker Edman, who recently married a tall, thin man, says that if you can't be slim, you should look slim. She says that she has learned this lesson from her own experience. She says that she has been told that she is too fat, and she has tried to lose weight, but she has failed. She says that she has decided to look slim, and she has done so by wearing clothes that make her look thinner. She says that she has been very successful in this, and she is now very happy. She says that she has learned that it is not necessary to be thin to be beautiful, but it is necessary to look thin. She says that she has learned this lesson from her own experience, and she has decided to look slim, and she has done so by wearing clothes that make her look thinner. She says that she has been very successful in this, and she is now very happy.
