Chart Showing the Progression of all the Different Names for the Band

The following chart listing the names used in various documents to label the band through the years was not originally planned to be a part of the framework of this research. However, its idea, and a thought as to its possible interest to others, came about as a part of a discussion I had with an acquaintance in the very early days of this research.

The discussion basically started with a casual mention of all the names I had already found that the band had been called just from just a small sampling of the documents I had examined thus far. This included numerous newspaper articles as well as various other documents, some even generated by the band musicians themselves.

Clearly, some of those names were “official”, since a band picture could be found of specific names on the bass drum through different decades. However, clearly some of these names were NOT official, since I lived through the times in which these obviously wayward names were to be found in various publications.
